GOOD TO KNOW

An adviser, not a mind reader.

In 2026, assistants (ChatGPT, Gemini, Le Chat) and dedicated tools turn a few details about a person, their tastes, the occasion, your budget, into a list of personalized ideas in seconds. Enough to escape the gifts that all look the same.

- AI does not know the person

It only knows what you tell it. The richer and truer your description, the closer the ideas will land.

- Check before you buy

Prices, stock and shops can be invented or out of date. Confirm on the real site and beware of listings that look too good.

- The heart is you

AI gives leads, the thought comes from you. A great gift mostly shows that you truly paid attention to the person.

The right reflex: AI suggests, you choose, and it is your attention that counts.

THE METHOD

Ten prompts, five steps.

Finding a good gift takes no special talent. These 10 prompts turn AI into an adviser: it reads the person, suggests ideas, fits them to your budget, and you decide at every step. Adapt the words in brackets.

*Every prompt follows the same recipe: Role, Context, Task, Format.
Copy the structure, change the brackets.*

The True Portrait

PROMPT TO COPY

Role: you are a caring gift adviser who listens.

Context: I want to give a gift to [who: bond, age], here is what I know: [tastes, passions, job, style].

Task: build a portrait of their tastes to guide the gift choice.

Format: their interests, what they love and hate, and three gift directions to explore.

What you get

A clear portrait of the person instead of a blur. You start from who they are, not from random ideas.

The Hints Gathered

PROMPT TO COPY

Role: you are a detective of small attentions.

Context: here are things they said or did recently [phrases, wishes, gaps, complaints].

Task: spot the hints of a gift that would truly please them.

Format: the signals you spot, what each reveals about a need or a wish, and the idea it suggests.

What you get

The hints that were under your nose, finally used. The gift comes from what they let slip.

Tailored Ideas

PROMPT TO COPY

Role: you are a source of varied gift ideas.

Context: here is the portrait of the person [paste it]
and the occasion [which one].

Task: give a list of gift ideas that fit them.

Format: eight ideas ranked from safest to boldest, each with why it suits them.

What you get

A list of ideas cut to fit them, not a generic catalogue.
You have enough to choose with confidence.

The Original Gift

PROMPT TO COPY

Role: you are a hunter of ideas that stand out.

Context: I want to avoid the dull or overdone gift for [who], who loves [what they love].

Task: suggest original ideas, including one experience and one handmade gift.

Format: five uncommon ideas, what makes them special, and a simple version of each.

What you get

A gift people remember, far from the cliché. You surprise without overspending or taking a risk.

Within Budget

PROMPT TO COPY

Role: you are an adviser who respects budgets.

Context: my budget is [amount] and here are my shortlisted ideas [paste them].

Task: fit these ideas to my budget without making them look cheap.

Format: the affordable ideas, one nice option per price tier, and how to boost the effect without spending more.

What you get

A gift worthy of your means, never of the price tag. You give well without going into the red.

The Right Occasion

PROMPT TO COPY

Role: you are a guide to customs and etiquette.

Context: the gift is for [occasion] and our bond is [colleague, in-laws, friend, boss].

Task: tell me if my idea [which one] suits this occasion and this bond.

Format: what works or not, the faux pas to avoid, and a safer fallback idea if needed.

What you get

A gift suited to the moment and the relationship. You avoid the misstep, too much or too little.

The Handmade Gift

PROMPT TO COPY

Role: you are a guide to handmade gifts, patient and clear.

Context: I have little budget but some time, and I want to give to [who] who loves [what].

Task: suggest a handmade gift or a personal touch a beginner can pull off.

Format: three ideas, the simple supplies, the short steps, and the time to allow.

What you get

A gift that is worth the thought, not the price. You give something no one else could make.

The Note That Lands

PROMPT TO COPY

Role: you are a writer of honest, well-chosen words.

Context: I am giving [the gift] to [who] for [occasion],
and I want to add a short note.

Task: help me write a short, personal message that comes from the heart.

Format: three versions, one tender, one funny, one plain, a few lines each.

What you get

A note that moves them as much as the gift. You say what you feel without hunting for words.

The Beautiful Wrap

PROMPT TO COPY

Role: you are a specialist in careful presentation.

Context: I am giving [the gift] and I want it lovely to receive, with [what I have on hand].

Task: suggest a simple, pretty way to wrap and hand it over.

Format: two easy wrapping ideas, a finishing touch, and an ideal moment to give it.

What you get

A gift that lands well from the first glance. You care for the moment, not only the object.

The Kindness Calendar

PROMPT TO COPY

Role: you are an organizer of the occasions not to miss.

Context: here are the people who matter to me and their dates [birthdays, holidays, events].

Task: help me never be caught out again and note ideas ahead of time.

Format: a calendar of the year's occasions, a reminder before each date, and two ideas already noted per person.

What you get

No more last-minute gifts. You plan the whole year and always give at the right moment.
